Healthcare Marketing: Service-Line Growth, Physician Referrals and Patient Acquisition

Ref: 531_17092 Date: 21 – 25 November 2027 Location: Jeddah - Corniche four-star Fees: 19500 SAR

Introduction:

Healthcare marketing in many hospitals and clinics still means untargeted advertising, while patients choose providers through referring doctors, insurers, employers, search results and online reviews. Marketing budgets are spread across every department, referring physicians receive no structured contact and campaigns report impressions rather than new patients. This Core Concept course equips hospital and clinic marketing, business development and patient relations teams to segment patient demand, position service lines, build referral and payer relationships, run provider digital marketing within ethical limits and measure patient acquisition. Participants produce a Service-Line Marketing and Referral Growth Plan.

Course Objectives:

- Explain how healthcare services marketing differs from product marketing and apply the extended services marketing mix to a hospital or clinic service
- Segment patient demand and map the patient decision journey from symptom search to booked appointment for a chosen service line
- Build a physician referral development programme with referrer targeting, liaison visit routines and referral tracking
- Prepare marketing and account plans for corporate clients, insurers, employers and international patient facilitators
- Run provider digital marketing across website, local search listings, social media, health content and online review responses within ethical and privacy limits
- Measure campaign and referral performance with patient acquisition cost, conversion and return on marketing investment

Target Audience:

- Marketing and communications staff who plan campaigns, content and brand activity for hospitals, clinics and medical centres
- Business development staff who manage corporate, insurer and employer accounts for healthcare providers
- Physician liaison and referral coordination staff who visit referring doctors and track referral volumes
- Patient relations and contact centre staff who handle enquiries, bookings, reviews and patient feedback
- Service-line coordinators who promote specialty clinics and centres of excellence
- International patient office staff who respond to overseas enquiries and coordinate facilitator relationships

Course Outline:

Skills You Will Gain:

- Healthcare Services Positioning
- Patient Demand Segmentation
- Physician Relationship Marketing
- Payer and Corporate Account Planning
- Local Search and Review Management
- Health Content Governance
- Ethical Health Advertising Review
- Patient Acquisition Measurement

Why Attend This Course:

- Return with a Service-Line Marketing and Referral Growth Plan with targets, channels, referrer lists and a budget case
- Turn referring doctors, insurers and employers into planned sources of patient volume rather than chance contacts
- Check campaigns, testimonials and social posts against ethical and privacy limits before they are published
- Compare provider marketing practice with peers from private hospitals, clinic groups, diagnostic centres and specialty centres

Conclusion:

Patients rarely choose a hospital or clinic from an advertisement alone; they follow a referring doctor, a payer network, a search result, a review or a relative's experience. The course moves from what makes healthcare services marketing different and the patient decision journey, through segmentation, service-line positioning and reputation, to referral development, payer and employer accounts and international patients, then provider digital marketing and ethical limits. The final day measures patient acquisition and produces a Service-Line Marketing and Referral Growth Plan.
