Executive Protection and VIP Security Management Course: Advance Work, Events and Travel

Ref: 1556_25104 Date: 21 June – 2 July 2027 Location: London - Central London four-star Fees: 41400 SAR

Introduction:

Executive protection and VIP security management, with advance work, events and travel, is the subject of this 10-day course for corporate security, protection detail, protocol and event security managers, who build a Principal Protection Plan and Advance Report for a principal attending a multi-venue event. Principals are most exposed when itineraries leak, venues are surveyed late and hosts, drivers and venue staff work from different plans. Nominees already lead or coordinate protection for executives or senior guests, and teaching is by timed simulation on itineraries, venues and route disruptions. CoreConcept Training Center delivers this executive protection course.

Course Objectives:

- Build a principal profile and run a protective intelligence cycle that screens concerning communications and online exposure
- Grade the threat to a principal and set a proportionate protection level, detail size and shift roster
- Conduct advance surveys of venues, hotels, residences and routes and record the findings in a structured advance report
- Plan principal movements at conferences, celebrations and on journeys, including motorcade formation and protocol office coordination
- Prepare medical, evacuation and safe haven contingencies and direct the detail through a clear command and radio net
- Control information exposure, insider risk and legal limits of protective work, and review each assignment through after-action review

Target Audience:

- Managers who run corporate security functions responsible for senior executives and their families
 - Leads who command protection details assigned to principals, board members or visiting dignitaries
 - Protocol and guest relations managers who host delegations and coordinate their security arrangements
 - Event security managers accountable for principals at conferences, ceremonies and celebrations
 - Family office and executive office managers who oversee household staff, travel and residence security

Why Attend This Course:

- Deliver a Principal Protection Plan and Advance Report for a multi-venue event to the head of security and the principal's office
- Decide the protection level, detail size and route choices a principal needs for each venue and journey
- Avoid leaked itineraries, late venue surveys and uncoordinated hosts that leave a principal exposed at arrivals and departures
- Brief detail members, drivers and protocol colleagues using the advance checklist, radio net plan and contingency cards

Conclusion:

Back at work, the participant presents the Principal Protection Plan and Advance Report to the head of security, the principal's office and the protocol team, who use it to approve the protection level, detail roster, venue arrangements, routes and contingency annexes before the next high-profile assignment. Drivers, hosts and venue security receive the joint briefing pack. After the first assignment run under the plan, the detail should hold an after-action review, compare the protection performance indicators with expectations, and update the threat matrix, advance checklists and contingency cards.

Frequently Asked Questions FAQ:

What should participants know before an executive protection and VIP security management course?

Participants should already lead, coordinate or oversee protection for executives, families or senior guests. No tactical or firearms background is needed or taught. Anonymised itineraries, venue plans or incident summaries from their organisation help during the simulations.

How does this executive protection and VIP security management course differ from facility security or protocol courses?

It centres on the principal as a moving person: protective intelligence, threat grading, advance work, event, travel and motorcade planning, and detail command. Site guarding, ceremonial precedence and crowd capacity planning appear only as interfaces the protection detail coordinates with.

Why is advance work central to executive protection and VIP security?

Advance work finds problems before the principal arrives. Surveying venues, hotels and routes in advance sets arrival and departure points, holding rooms, hospital routes and safe havens, so the detail reacts to events with a rehearsed plan rather than improvising.

What do participants take back from the executive protection and VIP security management course?

Participants return with a Principal Protection Plan and Advance Report for a multi-venue event, including a threat matrix, protection level, detail roster, venue and route surveys, motorcade and evacuation annexes and contingency cards, ready to adapt to their own principal.
